A LEVEL

SOCIOLOGY

H582

For first teaching in 2024

Mapping the refreshed A Level Sociology specification H582 to the current specification H580

Introduction

We've updated our Sociology A Level for first teaching in September 2024 with first AS assessment in Summer 2025 and first A Level assessment in Summer 2026.

We've worked in close partnership with a wide range of stakeholders at each stage of the development including The British Sociological Association, to ensure the specification is, and remains, up to date and relevant.

We also carried out an Ethnicity, Diversity, Inclusion and Belonging (EDIB) review to ensure the qualification supports our wider commitment to EDIB. The refreshed specification modernises the course content and begins decolonising the curriculum by checking and removing assumptions about the world while also becoming more inclusive.

Our Sociology qualification has been designed for teachers and students looking for an engaging, modern and highly relevant Sociology curriculum.

Our A Level and AS Level Sociology qualifications are accessible to a range of students who will have the chance to learn and develop key sociological skills and ways of thinking.

This mapping guide highlights the content that remains the same as before and where topics have been added or removed.

This mapping guide

In the tables that follow, you can see:

- refreshed component details including key questions and the content they link to
- how the refreshed components map to the current specification components that you may already know, at learning outcome level
- brief comments about the changes we've made
- new content introduced to the specification
- old content that has been removed.

Mapping the refreshed specification against the current specification

Please note: For the refreshed H582 specification, we have removed the 'Learners should' column that appears in the H580 specification and added any content there into the new 'Content' column. In the 'Comments' column, where it says 'No content changes', the content remains the same, although some wording may have changed.

Refreshed qualification H582		Current qualification H580		Comments
Key question	Content	Key question	Content
1. How are family life and relationships changing?	The diversity of family and household types in the contemporary UK including blood and marriage-based relationships as well as chosen relationships: • nuclear families • extended families • lone parent families • reconstituted families • raconstituted families • non-family households • lone person households. Changing sociological understanding of family life and diversity in the contemporary UK (the last 30 years), including: • emerging family types • trends in marriage, divorce and cohabitation • same-sex relationships • demographic changes.	1. How diverse are modern families?	The diversity of family and household types in the contemporary UK: • nuclear families • extended families • lone parent families • reconstituted families • reconstituted families • same-sex families • non-family households Aspects of and reasons for family and household diversity in the contemporary UK, including: • trends in marriage, divorce and cohabitation • demographic changes: • birth rate • family size • age at marriage • age of childbearing • ageing population • family diversity in terms of: • social class • ethnicity • sexuality	We have included blood and marriage-based relationships. We have added lone person households to the list of chosen relationships. We have removed specific mention of family diversity in terms of gender, class and ethnicity. We have removed social action theory from the list of theoretical perspectives.

Information on Key question 1 continues on next page

Consider key demographic changes and the reasons for these:

- birth rate
- family size
- age at marriage
- age of childbearing
- ageing population.

Theoretical perspectives, consensus versus conflict and structure and social control views and debates on the role of the family and the desirability of the nuclear family in contemporary UK society:

2. Why do some young people participate in deviant subcultures?

Deviant subcultures:

- delinquent subcultures
- criminal subcultures
- anti-school subcultures
- urban music subcultures
- female subcultures.

Patterns within the last 30 years in sociological research and official statistics on youth subcultural deviance in terms of:

- social class
- gender
- ethnicity
- location.

Explanations for why some young people participate in deviant subcultures, including structural and social action theory as well as issues of gender and ethnic identity:

- functionalism/New Right
- Marxism/neo-Marxism
- interactionism
- feminism.

The role of the media; contemporary folk devils, moral panics and youth deviance:

- deviancy amplification
- social/digital media influence.

2. Why do young people participate in deviant subcultures?

Deviant subcultures:

- delinquent subcultures
- criminal subcultures
- spectacular youth subcultures
- anti-school subcultures
- gangs

Patterns and trends in youth deviance related to:

- social class
- gender
- ethnicity

Explanations for young people participating in deviant subcultures:

- functionalism/New Right
- Marxism/neo-Marxism
- interactionism
- culture and identity

The media and youth deviance:

- deviance amplification
- folk devils
- moral panics

We have reworded the key question.

We have added urban music subcultures and female subcultures and removed spectacular youth subcultures and gangs.

In the patterns in sociological research section, we have added location.

We have added feminism into the theory list.

We have reworded the role of the media section and added the role of social/digital media.

OCR operates academic and vocational qualifications regulated by Ofqual, Qualifications Wales and CCEA as listed in their qualifications registers including A Levels, GCSEs, Cambridge Technicals and Cambridge Nationals.

OCR provides resources to help you deliver our qualifications. These resources do not represent any particular teaching method we expect you to use. We update our resources regularly and aim to make sure content is accurate but please check the OCR website so that you have the most up to date version. OCR cannot be held responsible for any errors or omissions in these resources.

Though we make every effort to check our resources, there may be contradictions between published support and the specification, so it is important that you always use information in the latest specification. We indicate any specification changes within the document itself, change the version number and provide a summary of the changes. If you do notice a discrepancy between the specification and a resource, please contact us.

You can copy and distribute this resource freely if you keep the OCR logo and this small print intact and you acknowledge OCR as the originator of the resource.
